

Quince

Downy shoots and small brown buds. Ends of shoots often flattened and club-like. Yellow, scented pear shaped fruits.

Medlar

Downy shoots, rounded oblong leaves. Large white flowers followed by distinctive round fruits.

Cherry

Shiny shoots with clusters of buds on older twigs. Leaves strongly toothed with small glands on the stalk. Bark is often glossy, broken up with bands of corky lenticels.

Damson

Also known as Bullace, the Damson is a sub-species of the plum tree. A small tree with occasional spiny, brownish and downy branches. Small white flowers in early spring followed by rounded purple, red, yellow or green fruits.

Greengage

Another relative of the plum tree - very similar in appearance but with fruits that are green and sweet.

Cobnut

Cobnuts are the selected and improved form of the wild hazelnut. Rounded, slightly flattened green buds. Large, heart shaped leaves that are downy to the touch. Bright yellow catkins in spring and nuts concealed by a large husk.
